"Mom," said Amy. "Please can I have some money, to buy something new?" "No," said her mother. "You have plenty of nice things. What about your blue T-shirt? The one with a butterfly on it?" "Everyone else has something new," said Amy, unhappily. "I don't want to be the only one in old clothes." "③It is not old!" laughed her mother, "and it's lovely. ④【 don't / buy / the money / I / to / have / something new / you 】. You will have to ask your grandmother." This was a good idea. Amy's grandmother loved clothes and loved shopping! So Amy phoned her, and on Thursday they went to the shopping mall together.

"Now," said Grandmother, "we are here. So, what are we looking (⑤)? A dress? New jeans?" "I don't know," said Amy. "I will know when I see it." Amy and her grandmother went into every shop on the first floor. Amy found nothing. So they took the escalator up to the second floor and began again. In every shop, Amy tried (⑥) clothes. Still they found nothing. Grandmother was very patient. They took the escalator to the third floor and had lunch. Grandmother squeezed Amy's hand. "You will find something," she said. "There are five floors in this mall. We will keep going (⑦) we find your special thing." Amy ate her burger and said nothing. She was getting very tired. But grandmother was amazing! She never stopped smiling.

They searched in all the shops on the third floor and then went up to the fourth floor. But there, something happened inside Amy. Her heart suddenly felt very heavy. Tears came to her eyes, and she began to cry. "Oh love! (あ)" "I'm never going to find it, grandmother," said Amy. "I want to find something special so much, but nothing is right and I'm so tired. I just want to go home, but (い)" Grandmother passed her a tissue. "Don't upset yourself. (う) That's the important thing. And we've had a nice day. (え) And let me tell you a secret. I know the perfect thing for you to wear. Something that will make you feel wonderful. Something that will make everyone want to be your friend." "Really?" said Amy. "What is it? (お)" "You already have it." Grandmother whispered something in Amy's ear. Amy's eyes went big. "Yes," she said. "Yes! Oh grandmother, you are so clever!" She kissed grandmother on her cheek. "Let's go home."

That night, ⑧Amy's mom couldn't wait to see the special clothes (   ) (   ) (   ). But when Amy came down from her bedroom, she was wearing her old jeans and the blue butterfly T-shirt. "You are going in that?" said Mom. "But you spent the whole day shopping! You said you found ⑨the perfect thing to wear!" "I did find it," said Amy. "I am wearing it, Mom. A smile!"
